Supporting football organisations at global level

Football connects billions of people around the globe but how do major football organisations deliver coherent communications and information across multiple languages? Partnering with an international Translation Service Provider for expert process management, technology and linguistic skill is critical to answering the demands of global stakeholders and fans.

The 'Beautiful Game' is only half the challenge. Behind the scenes, EVS Translations supports internationalisation and translation departments to deliver quality content at scale, just-in-time communication and specialist stakeholder information. From licensing and advertising, to tax and compliance, as well as medical and anti-doping information, we support your presence on the international stage.

Our global in-house teams, across all project critical areas, work to create precise and consistent content regardless of volume and timeframes. Once the content is complete, it is re-created by our expert technical team in the digital or print-ready format of your choice.
